JAPANESE WHISKY

Commercial whisky distilling in Japan has only been around for about 100 years and today there are only a dozen or so active distilleries. Two of the main figures in the history of Japanese whisky are Shinjiro Torii who founded Suntory and Masataka Taketsuru who was hired to establish the Yamazaki distillery. Taketsuru learned to distill in Scotland and the Japanese whisky style is similar to Scotch. Taketsuru wanted to build a distillery in Yoichi, Hokkaido which has a climate closely resembling what he saw in Scotland. Due to financial considerations, the first distillery ended up being built on the main island in Yamazaki. Blending is a major component to the final product of Japanese whisky and by 2020, a lot of distilleries were importing spirits to blend in with their own. In 2021 the government passed new legislation to define “Japanese whisky”. By 2024, products labeled as “Japanese whisky” must be fermented, distilled, aged, and bottled in Japan, use some portion of malted grain in its mash, and use water sourced from Japan.

SUNTORY

Founded by Shinjiro Torii in 1923 with Japan's first and oldest malt whisky distillery, Yamazaki (Osaka Prefecture). The Chita grain distillery was added in 1972 (Aichi Prefecture), the Hakushu malt distillery in 1973 (Yamanashi Prefecture).

Osaka Prefecture | Aichi Prefecture | Yamanashi Prefecture

Toki $17 (43% ABV)

Released in 2016, Toki is a blended whisky designed for the modern palate. It features a unique, lighter blend from Suntory's three distilleries.

Ao World Blend $26 (43% ABV)

Crafted by chief blender Shinji Fukuyo and released in 2019. It blends whiskies from all five major global regions (Scotland, Ireland, Canada, US, Japan). Blue in Japanese is "Ao", which refers to the oceans connecting Suntory's global distilleries

Hibiki Harmony $35 (43% ABV)

A no-age-statement blend designed to showcase the art of blending amidst dwindling aged whisky stocks. It uses over 10 malt and grain whiskies from Yamazaki, Hakushu, and Chita distilleries.

Yamazaki 12 Year $75 (43% ABV)

Released in 1984 and created at Japan's first malt whisky distillery. Yamazaki 12 Year is a pioneering Japanese single malt bringing a delicate, Mizunara-influenced whisky to the global market.

Hakushu 12 Year $75 (43% ABV)

Established in 1973, the Hakushu Distillery is located in the Japan Alps to create a "green and fresh" malt whisky. Known as a "distillery in the forest," it uses soft, mountain-filtered water and often produces lightly peated, herbal single malts.

NIKKA

Founded by Masataka Taketsuru who learned how to operate a Coffey still while in Scotland in 1919. The Coffey still is the first patented continuous still invented by Aeneas Coffey in 1830. Masataka founded Nikka in 1934 after his 10-year contract at Yamazaki.

NIKKA WHISKY
ニッカウキスキー

Nikka Coffey Grain $26 (45% ABV)

Mostly made from corn, distilled in a Coffey still and aged in old American oak.

Nikka Coffey Malt $29 (45% ABV)

Developed in 2013, made from 100% malted barley distilled in a Coffey still and aged in old barrels. This is technically a grain whisky since it is not from a pot still.

Nikka Yoichi Single Malt $35 (45% ABV)

From Nikka's first distillery built 1934 in Yoichi. Yoichi's climate is similar to Scotland, where Masataka learned to distill. The malts have a smoke and peat aspect from coal-fired distillation and a briny hint from Ishikari Bay's air.

Nikka Miyagikyo Single Malt $35 (45% ABV)

From Nikka's second distillery built in the Miyagi prefecture in 1969. Elegant and fruity made from lightly peated and unpeated malted barley in a pot still.

Nikka Taketsuru Pure Malt $30 (43% ABV)

In honor of the founder of Nikka. Pure Malt is a blend from multiple distilleries.

Nikka From the Barrel $28 (51.4% ABV)

First released in 1985, this is a blend of over 100 malt and grain whiskies that are straight from the barrel, something only blenders typically smell and taste. The higher ABV blend is aged for a few more months in used barrels to meld together.

Nikka Days $21 (40% ABV)

Developed for whisky lovers based on the concept "whisky for every day". A blend of mellow grain whiskies and slightly peated malts.

AKASHI

Produced at the Eigashima Distillery, known as "Japan's Micro Distillery" where they have been making sake and shochu since 1888. Whisky is only produced one month a year from barley and malt imported from Scotland. (Hyogo Prefecture)

兵庫県

Hyogo Prefecture

Akashi White Oak Blended Whisky $18 (40% ABV)

This malt and grain blend is very lightly peated and matured in ex-bourbon, shochu and virgin oak casks.

Akashi Single Malt $36 (46% ABV)

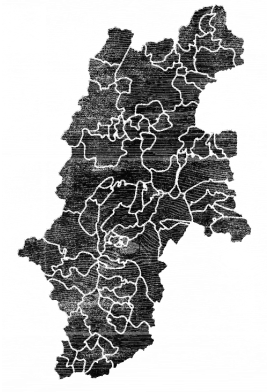

Due to Eigashima Shuzo's coastal climate, Akashi whiskies are imparted with a unique briny quality that is especially apparent in this expression.

Akashi Single Malt Sherry Cask $62 (50% ABV)

A limited, annual release that's aged 5 years in Pedro Ximenez casks then finished in Oloroso casks.

MARS

Japan's highest altitude distillery at just over 2,600 feet. The Hombo family moved their operation from the island of Kyushu in 1984 to the Miyada village in the Alps. This site was chosen for its colder temperatures which allows for a slower maturation. There is also an abundant supply of soft glacier water.

長野県
Nagano Prefecture

Mars Iwai Tradition $19 (40% ABV)

Iwai Tradition, a malt-driven spirit with minimal peat, introduces accessible and compelling Nagano-produced, complex yet approachable distillates and Japanese whisky. A blending of sherry, bourbon and wine casks with delicate hints of peat make for a harmonious whisky.

KIKORI

The ideal climate, pristine water and volcanic topography converge in perfect unison in Kumamoto, Japan. 100% locally grown rice which has been cultivated in southern Japan for over 2000 years. The nutrient-rich, volcanic soil of Kyushu Island is the ideal environment to grow this nutritious and flavorful rice.

熊本県
Kumamoto Prefecture

Kikori Rice Whiskey $17 (41% ABV)

One of the first whiskies distilled from 100% rice and produced in Japan to be introduced to the US. Barrel aged for a minimum of three years in American oak, French limousin oak and sherry casks. The name Kikori means "Woodsman" in Japanese and is inspired by visu, an ancient woodsman who wandered the forest for centuries seeking the perfect balance to his life.
